BROOK'S ROMANTIC MARRIAGE

Honeymoon of Antioch Young Man Disturbed by Arrest on Charge of Larceny

BRIDE SAYS IT'S SPITEWORK

Young Woman is Heiress to $30,000 of Grandfather's Estate and Says Parent Wished to Get Control of Money

The following article, clipped from the Chicago papers of Wednesday morning, shows that our fellow townsman, Elmer Brook, is having a rather strenuous time on his honeymoon. There is an old saying that "true love never runs smooth" and developments in this case indicate that Mr. and Mrs. Brook are having their share of matrimonial tribulations. The case seems to be one of too much mother-in-law and while it may contain a few unpleasant features we predict that the genial Elmer will soon extricate himself from all difficulties and, as in fiction, "live happily ever after."

E. Elmer Brook, a young banker of Antioch, Ill., who is spending his honeymoon at the La Salle hotel with his bride of a week, will have to appear in the Maxwell street police court this morning to answer a charge of stealing jewelry valued at $1,000 from his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lucretia Brown, 3414 West Jackson boulevard. The bridegroom was arrested on a warrant obtained by Mrs. Brown Tuesday afternoon, and while his bride stood tearfully by Brook was taken to the Fillmore street station and locked up for nearly an hour, till his business friends in Chicago provided bond for him.

Mrs. Brook, who was Miss Nina McClelland, declares that the arrest is due to spitework on the part of her mother, Mrs. Brown, who violently opposed the match for financial reasons.

She went with her husband to the Fillmore street police station, where she told Capt. Storen that she had taken the jewelry herself. She said she did this because her mother held some of her property and she wanted the jewelry as security. The articles taken consisted of a brooch, a watch and a diamond pin.

Mrs. Brook, who is 19 years old and decidedly pretty, is a granddaughter of General McClelland of Civil war fame and a cousin of former Mayor McClelland of New York. She is to inherit $30,000 from her grandfather's estate when she is 21 years old. She claims that her mother wanted to have her say in the management of her fortune, and for that reason did not want her to marry anyone.

Mrs. Brown's plans to keep her daughter single went to pieces when the girl met Brook about five months ago. Mrs. Brown violently opposed the attentions of the young man, but her husband, Palmer Brown, favored the suit. Whether due to his espousal of Brook's suit or other domestic differences, Mr. and Mrs. Brown have separated. Mr. Brown is an official of the Chicago Crayon company, 1123 West Twentieth street.

Mr. Brook came to Chicago early last week, and on Wednesday last Miss McClelland disappeared from her home. The pair were married on the same day in this city. Sunday night, while Mrs. Brown was absent from the house, Mr. and Mrs. Brook went to the Brown home in a taxicab, entered the house and according to the mother carried off $1,000 worth of jewelry and silverware, including a diamond brooch, a diamond ring and a watch.

Mrs. Brook knew just where the key was hidden and had no difficulty in getting into the house. Tuesday morning Mrs. Brown swore out a warrant for the arrest of her son-in-law charging him with larceny.

After the arrest Palmer Brown went to the police station and secured the release of Brook on $1,000 bonds. Mrs. Brown said in the evening that she expected to settle the matter out of court.

LATER—Brook was discharged by Municipal Judge Heap Wednesday morning when arraigned in the Maxwell street court. "I believe Mrs. Brown's attempt to frustrate the marriage is the basis for this charge," said Judge Heap, "and the defendant is discharged."

STEARNS MAY BE IN IT

Springfield Dispatch States that All Who Voted for Lorimer Will be Quizzed

That Legislator A. K. Stearns, representative of this district in the state legislature, is to be called to the Sangamon grand jury to explain the reason why he voted for Lorimer for senator is evident from the following in the Chicago Daily News, for Mr. Stearns, it is recalled, voted for Lorimer after having voted almost one hundred times for Mr. Foss.

Legislative and political circles received a shock when it became known that two members of the general assembly are expected to give evidence to the Sangamon county grand jury involving some of the big Republican and Democratic leaders of the state. State's Attorney Burke is hot on the trail of the big guns involved in the charges that Senator William Lorimer's seat in the United States Senate was purchased.

All the Republicans and Democrats who voted for Senator Lorimer will be subpoenaed before the grand jury, according to aids in State's Attorney Burke's office. The plan is to bring them in one by one and ask them whether they received any money. Three members of the Legislature are to be given opportunity to explain their votes. They are:

Representative B. F. Staymates of Clinton, Democrat.

Representative Charles L. McMackin of Salem, Republican.

Representative Harvey D. McCollum of Louisville, Democrat.

Mr. Stearns' name has not been brought into any of the affair up to the present time and he has said all along that he didn't care what was said or done, his skirts were clear for he had voted for Mr. Foss until the last ditch and merely went to Lorimer as a last resort. However, he is one of those who voted for Lorimer and, according to the Springfield dispatch, is in line for a short confab with the grand jury which is now probing things in Springfield. Mr. Stearns stated some time ago he would willingly answer court summons which might be served on him to testify in the investigation but that he would not voluntarily proffer such services, for he had nothing to say, as would be seen from his testimony in case it were called for.

LOSE LIVES AT RAISING

Two Men Killed at Barn Raising at Palatine as Roof Collapses

Two well known residents of Palatine Illinois, lost their lives Monday at a barn raising when the barn suddenly collapsed. The victims of the accident are Henry Langhurst, who leaves a wife and a young child, and William Mess, who leaves wife and four children. The two men were on the top of barn when it suddenly collapsed, precipitating them onto the floor of the concrete basement.

The fatal accident occurred at four o'clock Monday afternoon killing Langhurst instantly. Mess died of his injuries at ten o'clock at night. Scores of neighbors and friends who had gathered to assist in the barn raising witnessed the accident. The barn was located on the farm of Fred Linneman situated about a mile from Palatine and the fatality occurred at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The accident put a damper on the decoration day festivities and resulted in the stopping of a ball game which was in progress. The men who lost their lives were prominent in the locality. Faulty construction of the barn which was a large one, is the only cause which can be assigned for the giving way of the framework.

FOSS "WAS" BUT "IS" NOT ANY MORE

Representative George Edmund Foss of Chicago fears that some persons may think he is a candidate for United States senator to succeed Senator Cullon or Senator Lorimer, on account of error in an interview with him printed in the Tribune Monday morning.

The Congressman, in his interview, expresses his reluctance to comment upon the speech of Senator Lorimer because he was a candidate for senator before the Legislature that elected Lorimer. An error in publication made him attribute his modesty to "the fact that I am a candidate for the senatorial nomination."

He telephoned the Tribune bureau that the statement was misleading. Mr. Foss has not announced his candidacy for office except that of congressman, though it is known that he has aspirations to succeed Deneen as governor of Illinois. As for the senatorship—well, Mr. Foss does not believe in running for more than two offices at the same time.

THEATER DAMAGED IN STORM

Roof Beams of Barrison Theater, Waukegan, Collapse During Performance

SERIOUS PANIC IS AVERTED

Theater Management Handles Crisis in Most Exemplary Manner and Deserves Great Credit

Following the collapse of a supporting iron brace on the roof of the Barrison theater 10:20 Saturday evening, the roof of the theater steel ceiling and all sustained a collapse whet two iron beams broke or bent, causing the ceiling of the theater to come down between two and three feet.

There was a rain falling and a howling wind blew. The roof at the same time it sagged sprung a half a score of leaks and water began to drip down on the audience.

The theater was well filled. The show was nearly ended. The moving pictures were nearly run through when the house was startled by a crack like the report of artillery and then little cracks began to be heard above on the roof.

The tendency of the audience was to bolt the for doors.

However, just as soon as the noises began to be head Stage Manager Nate Frudenfeld sprang on the lights and the theater, which had been dark because of the moving views, was flooded with light.

At the same time Drummer Phil Dahlberg and other cool headed ones sprang to their feet, and raising hands begged the people to be seated and not to make a rush.

Some miscreant, it is said, shouted fire before this.

The people calmed down. Some left. The roof did not show any signs of coming down in a hurry, so the moving pictures were finished and the crowd which included many woman and children fled out in a orderly manner under the direction of Manager Frudenfeld.

Manager Frudenfeld was downstairs beneath the stage when the crash came and did not know what had happened until he came above.

The handling of the entire crisis reflects great credit on the management. It is also a subject of commendations that a few made effort to bring quiet and order, as had there been a panic the effect would have been disastrous.

Manager Frudenfeld, Sunday and Monday, as a result, moved his show to the Schwartz theater, which is open for Sunday shows by the Barrison people anyway and eight acts were presented Sunday.

The Barrison room beam are badly sagged, most of it having come Saturday night after the people had left. The roof remained intact while the crowd was there. The iron brace in toppling over carried a portion of the brick work, which crashed into the new apparatus. The cause of the collapse is not known now, unless the jar of the 300 pound ventilating motor in operation might have had something to do with it.

The theater is not on the whole badly injured, but will take some time to repair. Seats were damaged by the leaking roof beams were bolted, served to keep the theater whole. The floors seem to have sagged a bit, but a few days' work will make repairs.

When the crash came every employee of the theater was at his or her post. The music never stopped for a moment except that Miss Cora Salisbury played a bit louder to still the people. The moving pictures were kept in motion by Operator McMahon. There was no confusion except that a few arose in their places. No dash was made towards the doors. The handling of the situation reflects great credit on the management and on the temper of the people.

Good in Being Well Dressed.
Carelessness in the matter of clothes undoubtedly lowers a man in his own estimation. I don't believe there is a man alive who can preach a good sermon or can be an effective and skillful doer of any good work, if he is conscious that his linen is soiled and his clothes are ill-fitting and worn. There is about the ill-dressed man a sense of incompleteness that shears him of his personal power and magnetism.—Dr. Madison E. Peters.

FARMERS ARE TO BENEFIT

Electric Line Extension Will be Put to Many Novel Usages on the Farm

BANKS TO BE PROTECTED

Problem Has Been Solved Whereby all Small Towns May Solve the Sewage Problem Successfully

Farmers on the line of the North Shore Electric company will be able if they desire to light their houses and operate their barn yard machinery by electricity this summer, if they desire.

It is announced that the problem of "tapping off" from high tension lines has been solved or rather that machinery which renders the operation a financial possibility has been solved. At the convention of the National Electric Light Association at St. Louis last week, an entire day was given up to the discussion of the new field service thus made possible.

"There has not, for some years, been any mechanical difficulty about the operation of taking current off a high voltage line," said a member of the association who was present at the convention, "the problem has been purely a financial one. Too much investment was required in transformers for the returns. But this has all been solved, and now it is expected in the electrical world that farmers can be supplied the same as city people, where they are adjacent to lines. There is always a lot of small machinery about a farm if its up to date. It can all be run by electricity now. Electricity will do anything. I expect the lowly cow will be milked by electricity."

Officials of the North Shore Electric company describe other new and interesting uses that will be made of current in the company's big territory which is larger geographically than Rhode Island, to which more than one hundred miles of new transmission lines are being built. One of these uses is the cutting of ice by current. Machinery for that purpose has been perfected and will be seen on the northern Illinois lakes next winter. Another employment for electricity will be in connection with the disposition of sewage and the purification of water. The first subject especially is one of great interest in most of the seventy or eighty towns in the territory. Extensive experiments have been made along novel lines with excellent results, it is stated, the aim being to rapidly deprive sewage of its deleterious features at a less cost than is involved in the customary method. Purification of water is easily accomplished by subjecting it to certain light rays.

Another subject engaging the experts of companies whose territory includes small towns is the creation of a protective service for the banks. It is declared that it will be possible to electrify a safe in a country bank in such a manner as to render it impossible for any predatory yeggman to attack it, without the man who touches it instantly dropping dead under a large charge of electricity.

OLA HANSON PASSED AWAY FRIDAY LAST

On Friday of last week at his home west of Lake Villa occurred the death of Mr. Ola Hanson, one of the best known residents of the community, after an illness of considerable duration, the cause of which was a cancer.

Mr. Hanson was a great sufferer and about two weeks previous to his death he was stricken with paralysis, from the effects of which he never recovered. The deceased was born in Sweden in the year of 1848 and came to America in 1885 and since that time he has been a resident of the same community in which he resided at the time of his death which occurred on the twenty-seventh day of May, 1910, at the age of sixty-two years and six months.

He is survived by his beloved wife and six children, three sons, Alfred August and Hans, and three daughters Mrs. Wm. Gelden, Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Sorensen. The funeral service was held at his late home Sunday afternoon at two o'clock with Rev. F. B. Nixon of Lake Villa officiating. These last sad rites were attended by a large number of friends who gathered to pay their respect to the memory of him whom they had known as a true friend and esteemed neighbor. The floral offerings were noticeable both for their beauty and profusion. The remains were laid at rest in the Fox Lake cemetery.

OLDEST MASON IS DEAD

John L. Tweed Passed Away at His Home Wednesday Morning.

Wednesday morning of this week the hour of seven o'clock marked the passing away of another one of Lake County's oldest and most widely known residents, when Mr. John L. Tweed breathed his last at his home at Fox Lake, the cause of his death being a general breaking down of the entire system due to advanced age.

The deceased was born in Ireland in the year of 1821 and passed away at Fox Lake, Ill., on the first day of June, 1910 at the age of eighty-nine years.

Mr. Tweed enjoyed the distinction of having been the oldest living Mason in the state of Illinois, having been made a Master Mason in the year of 1844, he passed to the Royal Arch degree and was also a Knights Templar, Knight of Malta, Knight of the Red Cross and Mediterranean Pass.

He was a man well known, and highly honored by all with whom he came in contact, and his generosity and timely aid to the needy has made his memory precious in the minds of many of his fellow men.

He leaves to mourn his loss five daughters, Mrs. John Dalziel of Loon Lake, Mrs. Chas. Hucker of Rollins, Mrs. Alfred Mead of Millburn, Mrs. L. Lobdell of Grayslake and Miss Maggie Tweed who lived at home and cared for him in his declining years, besides grandchildren and many other relatives and friends.

The funeral services will be held at the Fox Lake Congregational church Saturday at twelve o'clock. The interment will be in the Grant cemetery.

THIS IS THE BEST EVER

Of the Many Swindles Going the Rounds None Can Outshine This One

What is certainly "the limit" in the line of swindles sprung by foreigners on the gullible Americans, and which is even more barefaced than the notorious letters from Spanish dungeons telling of vast fortunes awaiting American claimants, was received this week by Police Magistrate Walter Taylor, from Germany.

One would hardly think that the hairs from a man's neck contain much of virtue, but look at what the Hamburg prodigy can do with a few such hairs, if they are accompanied, of course, by a suitable amount of money! The letter: "Dear Sir:

"In case you or your family should be ailing or suffering pains, kindly forward to me a little bunch of your neck hairs to my address and I shall let you have the diagnosis of your disease. I kindly ask you to put me to the test. I do not want to determine your illness by summing up its symptoms, and yet you will be surprised at the absolute correctness of my statements, though being based on my analysis only.

"And not until I have convinced you by my thorough amazing diagnosis that my method of determination is unfailing in all its details, not until then I beg you to send me a fee which will be in proportion of your social standing, of your income, of the more or less importance of your ailment.

"As soon as such an amount will have reached me, I will send you the medicaments suiting your case and you will be struck by their efficaciousness in healing your case so quickly. I hate all sorts of puffing-up articles even the publication of letters sent to me by thankful persons whom I successfully treated—what I want is to win your confidence by my unerring diagnosis of your case, and which cannot but strike you.

"Looking forward to your esteemed answer I remain, dear sir, yours respectfully.

"F. O. Gedrath, Hamburg."

No hairs are yet missing from the back of Judge Taylor's neck.

Killed by Curiosity.

There is an African insect, the larvae of which prey upon ants. The larvae puts its head into a small hole in the ground and quivers its tail quickly. The ants come near to examine the novel object, and, gounded by curiosity, go too closely, when suddenly they are seized by the forceps or graspers with which the tail is furnished, and thus are killed. Not only do insects and the lower animals understand that the curiosity of their victims may be employed as a snare for them, but human beings understand and act upon the same principle. Many young men and young women have been ruined by adopting the apparently harmless course of "going to see what it was like."

INVOLVED IN HUGE MYSTERY

F. W. Lehbriek, of Waukegan, May Face Difficulty in Los Angeles, Cal.

RESULT OF PRACTICAL JOKE

Sends Message for Friend as a Joke Which Proves More Serious Than Was Expected

F. W. Lehbriek, traveling representative of the United States Carriage Company of Columbus, O., who with his wife made a Waukegan hotel his permanent address up to a few months ago, but who still transacts business in that city from time to time and who is well known to hundreds of local people, is said to be mixed up in a mysterious disappearance which may prove to be murder, in Los Angeles, Cal., according to the Los Angeles Times.

And strange to say, it is said that it all grew out of Mr. Lehbriek's fondness for practical jokes, many of which were perpetrated in Waukegan much to the discomfiture of his local friends.

Mrs. Hannah Smith of Portland, Ore., disappeared very mysteriously some time ago under conditions that are puzzling the detectives of that city. Eric E. Ericson, an undertaker in that city, was to have been called before the grand jury to explain certain alleged actions following Mrs. Smith's disappearance.

Lehbriek, it is asserted, is a friend of Ericson, having done business with him. When he arrived in Los Angeles, according to the printed statement in the California paper, he received a letter from Ericson which contained the outline of a telegram which he was asked to send to relatives of the woman in Portland. The purport of the message is said to have been that Mrs. Smith was alive and well. Lehbriek was informed, he is credited with saying, that the message was a practical joke and this at once aroused his interest.

To oblige Ericson he is said to have sent the message. Almost immediately he declares he received a letter, followed by several others from Ericson, asking him to recall the message.

When at first accused of having sent the telegram, Lehbriek is said to have denied the matter emphatically but later admitted everything, telling just why he had entered into the affair. It is not probable that any charges will be preferred against him but it is likely that he will be asked to appear before the grand jury and give his evidence.

The case takes on a serious aspect because of the alleged statement of a Mrs. O. Boden to detectives that shortly before her disappearance Mrs. Smith had declared to her that Ericson had made an attempt to poison her. She is said to have declared that she drank wine with him and had reasons to believe that it was poisoned as it made her very ill. The fact that he gave her a glass and drank none himself is said to have been what caused Mrs. Smith to make her alleged confession.

"Yes, I realized I had been a fool and was trying to cover my tracks. But I didn't kill Mrs. Smith," Ericson is said to have declared when questioned about the telegram matter.

Local friends of Mr. Lehbriek are much interested in the case and will watch for developments eagerly.

Revenge.

Revenge is a debt, in the paying of which the greatest knave is honest and sincere, and, so far as he is able, punctual. But there is a difference between a debt of revenge and every other debt. By paying our other debts, we are equal with all mankind; but in refusing to pay a debt of revenge we are superior.

The Father Handicap.

"No man will ever ask me to marry him," Daysey Mayme Appleton wrote in her diary recently, after an outburst of tears, "as long as father continues to wear a porous plaster, and come in the parlor to scratch his back on the mantel when I am entertaining a young man."—Atchison Globe.

A Diamond Candle.
Many diamonds which have been exposed to sunshine give out light on being placed in a dark room. When placed in a vacuum and exposed to a high-tension current of electricity, diamonds phosphoresce, or shine, with different colors. Most South African diamonds, under these circumstances, exhibit a bluish light, while diamonds from other parts of the world shine with such color as: bright blue, apricot, pale blue, red, yellowish green, orange and pale green. In a lecture delivered in London, Prof. Crookes stated that one beautiful green diamond in his collection, when phosphorescing in a good vacuum, gave almost as much light as a candle. The light was pale green, almost white.

Mrs. Charles Dickens. In his account of a dinner at the Thackerays, Mr. Bigelow throws a curious light on the subject of the trouble between Charles Dickens and his wife. He describes the latter as "not a handsome woman, though stout, hearty and matronly; there was something a little doubtful about her eye, and I thought her endowed with a temper that might be very violent when roused, though not easily rousable. Mrs. Caulfield told me that a Miss Teman—I think that is the name—was the source of the difficulty between Mrs. Dickens and her husband. She played in private theatricals with Dickens, and he sent her a portrait in a brooch, which met with an accident requiring it to be sent to the jeweler's to be mended. The jeweler, noticing Mr. Dickens' initials, sent it to his house. Mrs. Dickens' sister, who had always been in love with him and was jealous of Miss Teman, told Mrs. Dickens of the brooch, and she mounted her husband with comb and brush. This, no doubt, was Mrs. Dickens' version in the main."—Bookman.

Lumber for Autos Expensive.
Southern poplar and ash enter into the construction of the best automobile bodies, and it is not very easy to buy the wood without paying an exorbitant price for it," said a manufacturer. "Why, poplar that should be about $75 a thousand is now about $125, the stuff having been pretty well cornered, and the makers who did not look out for themselves have to pay the difference. "Anticipating a certain contract, I went south and bought 1,000,000 feet of it, and after that it did not make much difference whether I landed the job. I could have sold the lumber at about $50,000 profit and never touched it, but I am using it now. "All kinds of lumber that enter into the automobile have advanced in price remarkably, and where the end is to be I cannot say."

"The Substance of Things Hoped For."
In the New York City Home for the Aged, a deaf old gentleman was making application preparatory to becoming an inmate. As is the usual procedure, he was questioned as to age, income, nationality and religion. He seemed to be able to get through with the first three questions, but when asked his religion he stared blankly at the superintendent.

The doctors and orderlies of the home went through a series of shouts and explanatory gestures, but without success. As a last resort one of the doctors dropped on his knees, and with hands upraised to heaven tried to illustrate what they meant by religion. A gleam of intelligence came over the good man's face, and he exclaimed, joyously, "Tammam Hall." Success Magazine.

Pennsylvania's Lapse of Memory. Forgetting that he had started to draw a gallon of whiskey from a barrel in the cellar, A. C. Hilday, proprietor of the Hotel Hilday, Bloomsburg, Pa., left the spigot turned on and went upstairs. Two hours later he remembered it and hastened there. He found that it had all run away and into the sewer. His loss because of his lapse of memory will be about $100.—From the Philadelphia Record.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. HOLSTLAW INDICTED

GRAND JURY RETURNS INDICTMENT AGAINST STATE SENATOR FOR PERJURY.

MAY BRING BRIBERY CHARGE

Bill is Returned in Connection With Purchase of $19,710 Worth of Desks for Capitol—Several Others Are Involved.

Springfield, Ill. — The Sangamon grand jury which is investigating the purchase of $19,710 worth of desks for the state house by the legislative committee, returned an indictment Friday against State Senator D. W. Holstlaw, Democrat, of Iuka, on the charge of perjury.

Indictments against at least two other members of the commission and perhaps one or two of the agents who sold the desks are said to be drawn and ready to be voted on by the grand jury.

Holstlaw, it is said, will be reindicted on a charge of soliciting a bribe and possibly a third indictment of bribery will be lodged against him. His indictment for perjury came after he had sworn before the jury that he had not communicated or written to any of the agents representing the desk companies.

State's Attorney Burke asked him this question several times and then asked him if he had written to J. W. Knox of the Derby Desk company, 311 Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Holstlaw replied: "I did not." He was excused and then Mr. Burke showed the grand jury the following letter in Holstlaw's handwriting:

"Forty-Sixth General Assembly, State of Illinois, Senate, D. W. Holstlaw, Forty-Second District, Iuka.

"January 12, 1910.—Mr. Knox, Chicago, Ill.

"My Dear Sir: It has been arranged that I should see you. Will it be convenient for you to meet me in Springfield Monday evening, say about eight o'clock? If so, wire or write me at my home, Iuka, Ill. Must see you not later than above date. Yours respectfully.

(Signed) "D. W. HOLSTLAW."

After identifying Holstlaw's signature the indictment was voted.

According to the evidence of Knox before the grand jury he met Holstlaw as directed in the letter and offered Holstlaw $1,000 or $500 for himself, and $500 for Senator Pemberton for the contract. He told the grand jury that Holstlaw said he would not consider such a small sum, and spoke about $2,000.

KING ASKS MOURNING TO END

British Ruler Does Not Wish Tradesmen to Suffer—Roosevelt Received by Alexandra.

London.—The Court Gazette Tuesday announced that King George, Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra desire that general mourning shall end Friday, so that the tradesmen will not suffer.

King Edward bequeathed his entire racing and breeding establishments to King George, who will continue them on the same scale.

The mother queen, Alexandra, received Mr. Roosevelt at Buckingham palace.

The two had a long chat, during which her majesty took occasion personally to tell the former president how much she appreciated the sympathy exhibited for her in America at the time of her bereavement.

Subsequently the queen mother received Lord Strathcona, high commissioner of Canada.

In spite of England's mourning for King Edward, the municipal reception to Theodore Roosevelt to be held on May 31 will be one of the most notable ceremonies of years.

SAYS BALLINGER ISN'T SAFE

Glavin's Attorney Condemns Secretary of Interior in Summing Up for "Prosecution."

Washington.—"It has been conclusively established that Secretary Ballinger is not a man so zealously devoted to the interests of the common people, so vigilant and resolute in resisting the insidious aggressions of the special interests, that he may be safely decided on to carry forward the broad policy of conservation of our natural resources."

This was the condemnation of the secretary of the interior delivered by Attorney Louis D. Brandeis Friday in summing up the case of the so-called "prosecution" before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee.

"That he is subject to far severer criticism we firmly believe," added Mr. Brandeis.

TAFT REBUKES HIS CRITICS

DEPLORES DISCUSSION IN HOUSE OF HIS TRAVELING EXPENSES.

Sends Taft Letter Expressing Regret Over Remarks Made in Debate.

Washington.—President Taft Friday sent to Chairman Tawney of the house committee on appropriations a letter expressing deep resentment at the criticisms passed by Democrats in the house debate upon the traveling expenses of the president.

The president says he is especially distressed by "suggested reflection on southern hospitality."

"I am deeply grieved over the phase which the discussion of the appropriation for the traveling expenses of the president took yesterday. I think it is a legitimate argument in favor of such an appropriation that congressmen and many others press the acceptance of invitations to visit their sections and districts, because the urgency of such requests indicates the opinion on the part of the people that one of the duties of the president is to visit the people in their homes.

"But the intimation or suggestion that the acceptance by congressmen of the president's invitation to travel on the train with him in their respective districts or states was a reason why they should not vote their free opinion on the question of such an appropriation is to me a most painful one.

"In traveling upon the train they were not receiving my hospitality—they were only making a little more elaborate the cordial welcome which they as representatives of their districts wished to give.

"The feature of the discussion yesterday which was especially distressing to me was a suggested reflection on southern hospitality. The intimation that somewhere in the south board was charged has no foundation in fact, and I never heard it intimated until I saw it in this morning's paper.

"In all my experience—and I have enjoyed the hospitality of many sections and countries of the world—I never had a more cordial, generous, open and lavish welcome than I had in the southern states during my trip, and the slightest hint that puts me in the attitude of a critic of that hospitality gives me great pain."

In conclusion the president stated to Mr. Tawney that he would make the letter public.

CANTEEN IS AGAIN BEATEN

Naval Bill Passes Senate. Washington.—By the decisive vote of 35 to 28 the senate Monday approved the two-battleship program which has already gone through the house. Both of the new ships will be of the Dreadnaught class, and the most powerful fighting machines in the world. In addition, the senate added a provision to the bill for one submarine boat and six torpedo boat destroyers, none of which were provided for in the bill as it passed the house. As the bill goes to conference, it provides for two battleships, to cost not exceeding $6,000,000 exclusive of armament; two fleet colliders to cost not more than $1,000,000 each; five submarine torpedo boats at a total cost of not more than $2,500,000, and six torpedo boat destroyers, to cost not more than $750,000 each.

Buckingham made the opening argument, followed by Ralph Crews, chief counsel for the National Packing company. Afterward James H. Wilkerson, special assistant district attorney, and District Attorney Sims presented the government's side.

18 DROWNED IN SHIP CRASH

COLLISION ON LAKE HURON DUE TO DENSE FOG.

Freighter Frank H. Goodyear Sinks When Hit by the James B. Wood—Five Escape.

Port Huron, Mich.—Probably eighteen persons lost their lives in a collision between the large steel steamer Frank H. Goodyear of the Mitchell Transit company and the steamer James B. Wood, another steel vessel belonging to the Gilchrist Transportation company, in Lake Huron about thirty-five miles off Point Aux Barques. The Goodyear sank in 40 fathoms of water. But five persons were saved.

The collision occurred about six o'clock Tuesday morning in a heavy fog which overhung the lake.

A partial list of missing follows: Mrs. Lillian Bassett, wife of cook, Algonac, Mich.; John Bassett, three years old, Algonac; Archie Fuller, second mate, Algonac; John Gibson, chief engineer; Gus Zaetsch.

When the steamers came together the crew of the Goodyear, which is reported to have been struck amidships, had time only to seize life preservers. Only a few could jump overboard before the boat began to fill with water. The cook had just sounded the second call for breakfast on the Goodyear when the crash came and many were in the messroom. All rushed on deck and then the boat began to sink. Several jumped into the water and managed to get out of reach of the boat, which was filling fast.

Suddenly the Goodyear parted in the center and with a sound which could be heard above the whistling of the Wood, sank out of sight, carrying with it all except five on board.

The bow of the Wood was stove in, but she rested on her bulkhead, and although some water flowed into the hold, was kept afloat with the pumps. Captain Gibson of the Wood ordered the lifeboats lowered and gave the crew instructions to make every possible effort to save any of the sailors of the sinking steamer.

Seek Life of Alfonso.

Madrid.—A national campaign of terrorism instigated by the anarchists has been begun in Spain and the government is alarmed over the situation. Stern repressive measures were ordered. The explosion of a bomb here Monday night, followed by the suicide of the thrower, coming after the three outrages of the last week in Barcelona, is regarded as the beginning of the radicals' campaign. After search and inquiry the police believe the last bomb exploded was intended for King Alfonso.

FRENCH SUBMARINE IS SUNK

Every Member of Vessel's Crew, Numbering 27, Drowned—Rammed by Ferryboat.

Calais, France.—While trying to dive under a ferry boat in the English channel Thursday, the French submarine Pluviose was rammed and sunk with all on board.

The Pluviose carried a crew of twenty-three men and four officers, and all went down when the vessel sank. The disaster was witnessed by the passengers on the ferryboat.

The ferryboat Pas de Calais, crowded with passengers bound for Dover, had just left Calais when one of her side wheels experienced a violent shock. The captain, believing that his boat had struck a buoy, stopped his vessel and a moment later the hull of the Pluviose came to the surface a short distance astern.

A boat was hurriedly launched from the ferryboat and went alongside of the stricken craft, but the sailors rapped in vain against her metal sides and in a few minutes after the submarine arose to the surface she sank again beneath the waters.

Washington Heiress Is Married to Peter Goelst Gerry—President Taft Attends Wedding.

Washington.—Miss Mathilde Townsend, heiress of $30,000,000, and Peter Goelst Gerry of New York were married Thursday at the Washington home of the bride. The wedding was witnessed by a brilliant array of guests, including the president and vice-president of the United States. In point of distinguished attendance it was unequalled in private weddings in Washington's social history.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Roland Cotton Smith of St. John's church. Miss Townsend was given away by her uncle, Charles H. Strong of Erie, Pa. Her wedding gown was made up of point d'alencón lace, which cost $15,000.

Patten Is Hard Hit.

Chicago.—James A. Patten, almost on the eve of his retirement, was forced to "take the count" in one of the liveliest bouts he has ever had with the bears on the board of trade. The big speculator acknowledged defeat by throwing several million bushels of September wheat at quotations said to average fully ten cents a bushel under the purchase price. Many of his followers likewise suffered losses which in the aggregate amounted to a large sum. The total loss sustained by Patten was $1,200,000 and by his friends $800,000, according to brokers' estimates.

FLIES 137 MILES NEVER SAW FIANCEE

GLENN CURTISS SPEEDS FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK IN 2 1/2 HOURS.

AVERAGES 54 MILES AN HOUR

Frequently Soars to Altitude of 1,000 Feet—Wins a Prize of $10,000—Has One Very Narrow Escape.

New York.—Glenn H. Curtiss flew from Albany to New York city in an aeroplane Sunday, winning the $10,000 prize offered by the New York World. He covered the distance of 137 miles in two hours and thirty-two minutes, and came to earth as calmly and as lightly as a pigeon.

His average speed for the distance—54.08 miles an hour—surpasses any record ever made by an aeroplane in long distance flight, and in its entirety his feat perhaps eclipses anything man has attempted in a heavier than air machine.

The start was made from Albany at 7:03 o'clock under weather conditions as near perfect as the most fastidious aviator could demand. One hour and twenty-three minutes later he had made his stopping place near Poughkeepsie, where there was an hour's intermission. Resuming his flight at 9:26, he sped southward and landed within the boundary of Manhattan island at 10:35.

Paulhan's flight from London to Manchester—186 miles—exceeded the Curtiss feat in distance, but not in speed and danger. The Frenchman's average was 44.3 miles an hour, and below him lay English meadowland. Curtiss followed the winding course of the Hudson, with jutting headland, wooded slopes and treacherous pallsades. He swung high over the great bridge at Poughkeepsie, dipped at times within fifty feet of the river's broad surface and jockeyed like a falcon at the turns.

Only once did his craft show signs of rebellion. This was off Storm King, near West Point, where, at a height of nearly 1,000 feet, a treacherous gust struck his planes. The machine dropped like a rock for 40 feet and tilted perilously. But Curtiss, always cool, by adroit manipulation of his levers, brought renewed equilibrium to his steed.

ALMA KELLNER FOUND SLAIN

Kidnaped Louisville Girl Is Believed to Have Been the Victim of Murderer.

Louisville, Ky.—The dismembered body of Alma Kellner, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Kellner, who disappeared from her home here last December, was found Monday in the subbasement of St. John's Catholic school, at Clay and Walnut streets.

A rude attempt to bury the body indicated to the police that murder had been committed. The body was found by a plumber, who had been sent into the cellar to stop a leak in a water pipe which had flooded the basement.

Detectives engaged in the case admitted that they were detaining Mrs. Lena Wendling, who confessed that several months ago she had washed the clothes of a child without knowing who the child was. The police are hunting for her husband, Joseph Wendling, janitor of the St. John's school, who disappeared January 12. The torso was wrapped in a piece of carpet, except for one limb, which was discovered later in a corner of the cellar, buried in the clay floor of the basement to a depth of perhaps three feet.

As Coroner Duncan's investigation was pursued it became evident that the girl met death in a horrible manner. Her skull was crushed and nearly every bone in her body was broken and charred.

The belief is that the little girl was enticed or seized as she was within a few steps of the church, and taken into the dark sub-cellar, where she met her death.

M'FARLAND AND WELSH DRAW

American Makes Englishman Look Like Novice—Referee's Decision Causes Much Dissension.

London.—At the National Sporting club Monday night Packey McFarland made Freddie Welsh look like a novice through 20 slow but clever rounds. McFarland, taking no chances, fought cautiously but kept driving Welsh all about the ring. The attendance was the largest ever seen at the club.

McFarland's cleverness and clean, straight fighting proved a revelation and at the conclusion Referee Scott's decision of a draw was hooted from cellar to roof. The decision was unanimously declared to be the worst ever rendered at the club.

Burrows Is to Run Again.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—United States Senator Julius C. Burrows, through the Burrows club of this city and county, Monday announced his candidacy for re-election and his desire to be endorsed by popular vote at the primaries next fall.

Servian Crown Prince to Wed Turkish Sultan's Daughter.

Union Between the Royal Houses Arranged—Young Man Was Reported Having Designs on an American Heiress.

Belgrade.—In the announcement which has just been made of the engagement between the crown prince of Servia and Princess Schadis Sultana, fourth daughter of ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey, no one can find a signification of the impending union of two loving hearts, or anything approaching the romantic. These two young persons, who are one day to be man and wife, have never even seen each other, the prospective bride being a Turkish lady of high degree, who is seen by no one outside her own household until her wedding day.

The affair is fixed up by the father and uncle of the principal parties to it during the visit of King Peter of Servia to the sultan of Turkey and real significance is found in the fact that by allowing his niece to become the wife of the future king of Servia the sultan acknowledges the Karageorgievitch family to be of equal rank with his own. This family of lengthy and cacophonous nomenclature has had what literally may be called a mushroom growth, for only as far back as Crown Prince George.

1804 the founder of the dynasty was a swineherd. Servia was a part of the Turkish empire originally, but about that time it rose and the swineherd it was who won independence for his kingdom, and was set upon the throne as its first king.

The crown prince of Servia, as is probably known, is the second son of the present king of Servia, the eldest son having been forced by his father to renounce his claim to the throne owing to his wild and dissipated life. Prince Alexander is a much quieter youth, though one wonders rather what his opinion is on the subject of his unseen bride. Her veiled picture seems to show that she is an extremely beautiful girl.

The report was spread in the United States several months ago that the crown prince and his brother intended to visit that country this summer and would try to win the hand of some wealthy American girl, who would exchange her millions for the title of Queen of Servia.

It was said that a special envoy had gone to Washington to arrange for Prince George's introduction to a Chicago heiress who has several millions at her command and will have more in the event of the death of her mother. This has been emphatically denied and the announcement has been made that the man who claimed to be the royal matchmaker is not even known to the crown prince.

Tea Tipping in Ireland.

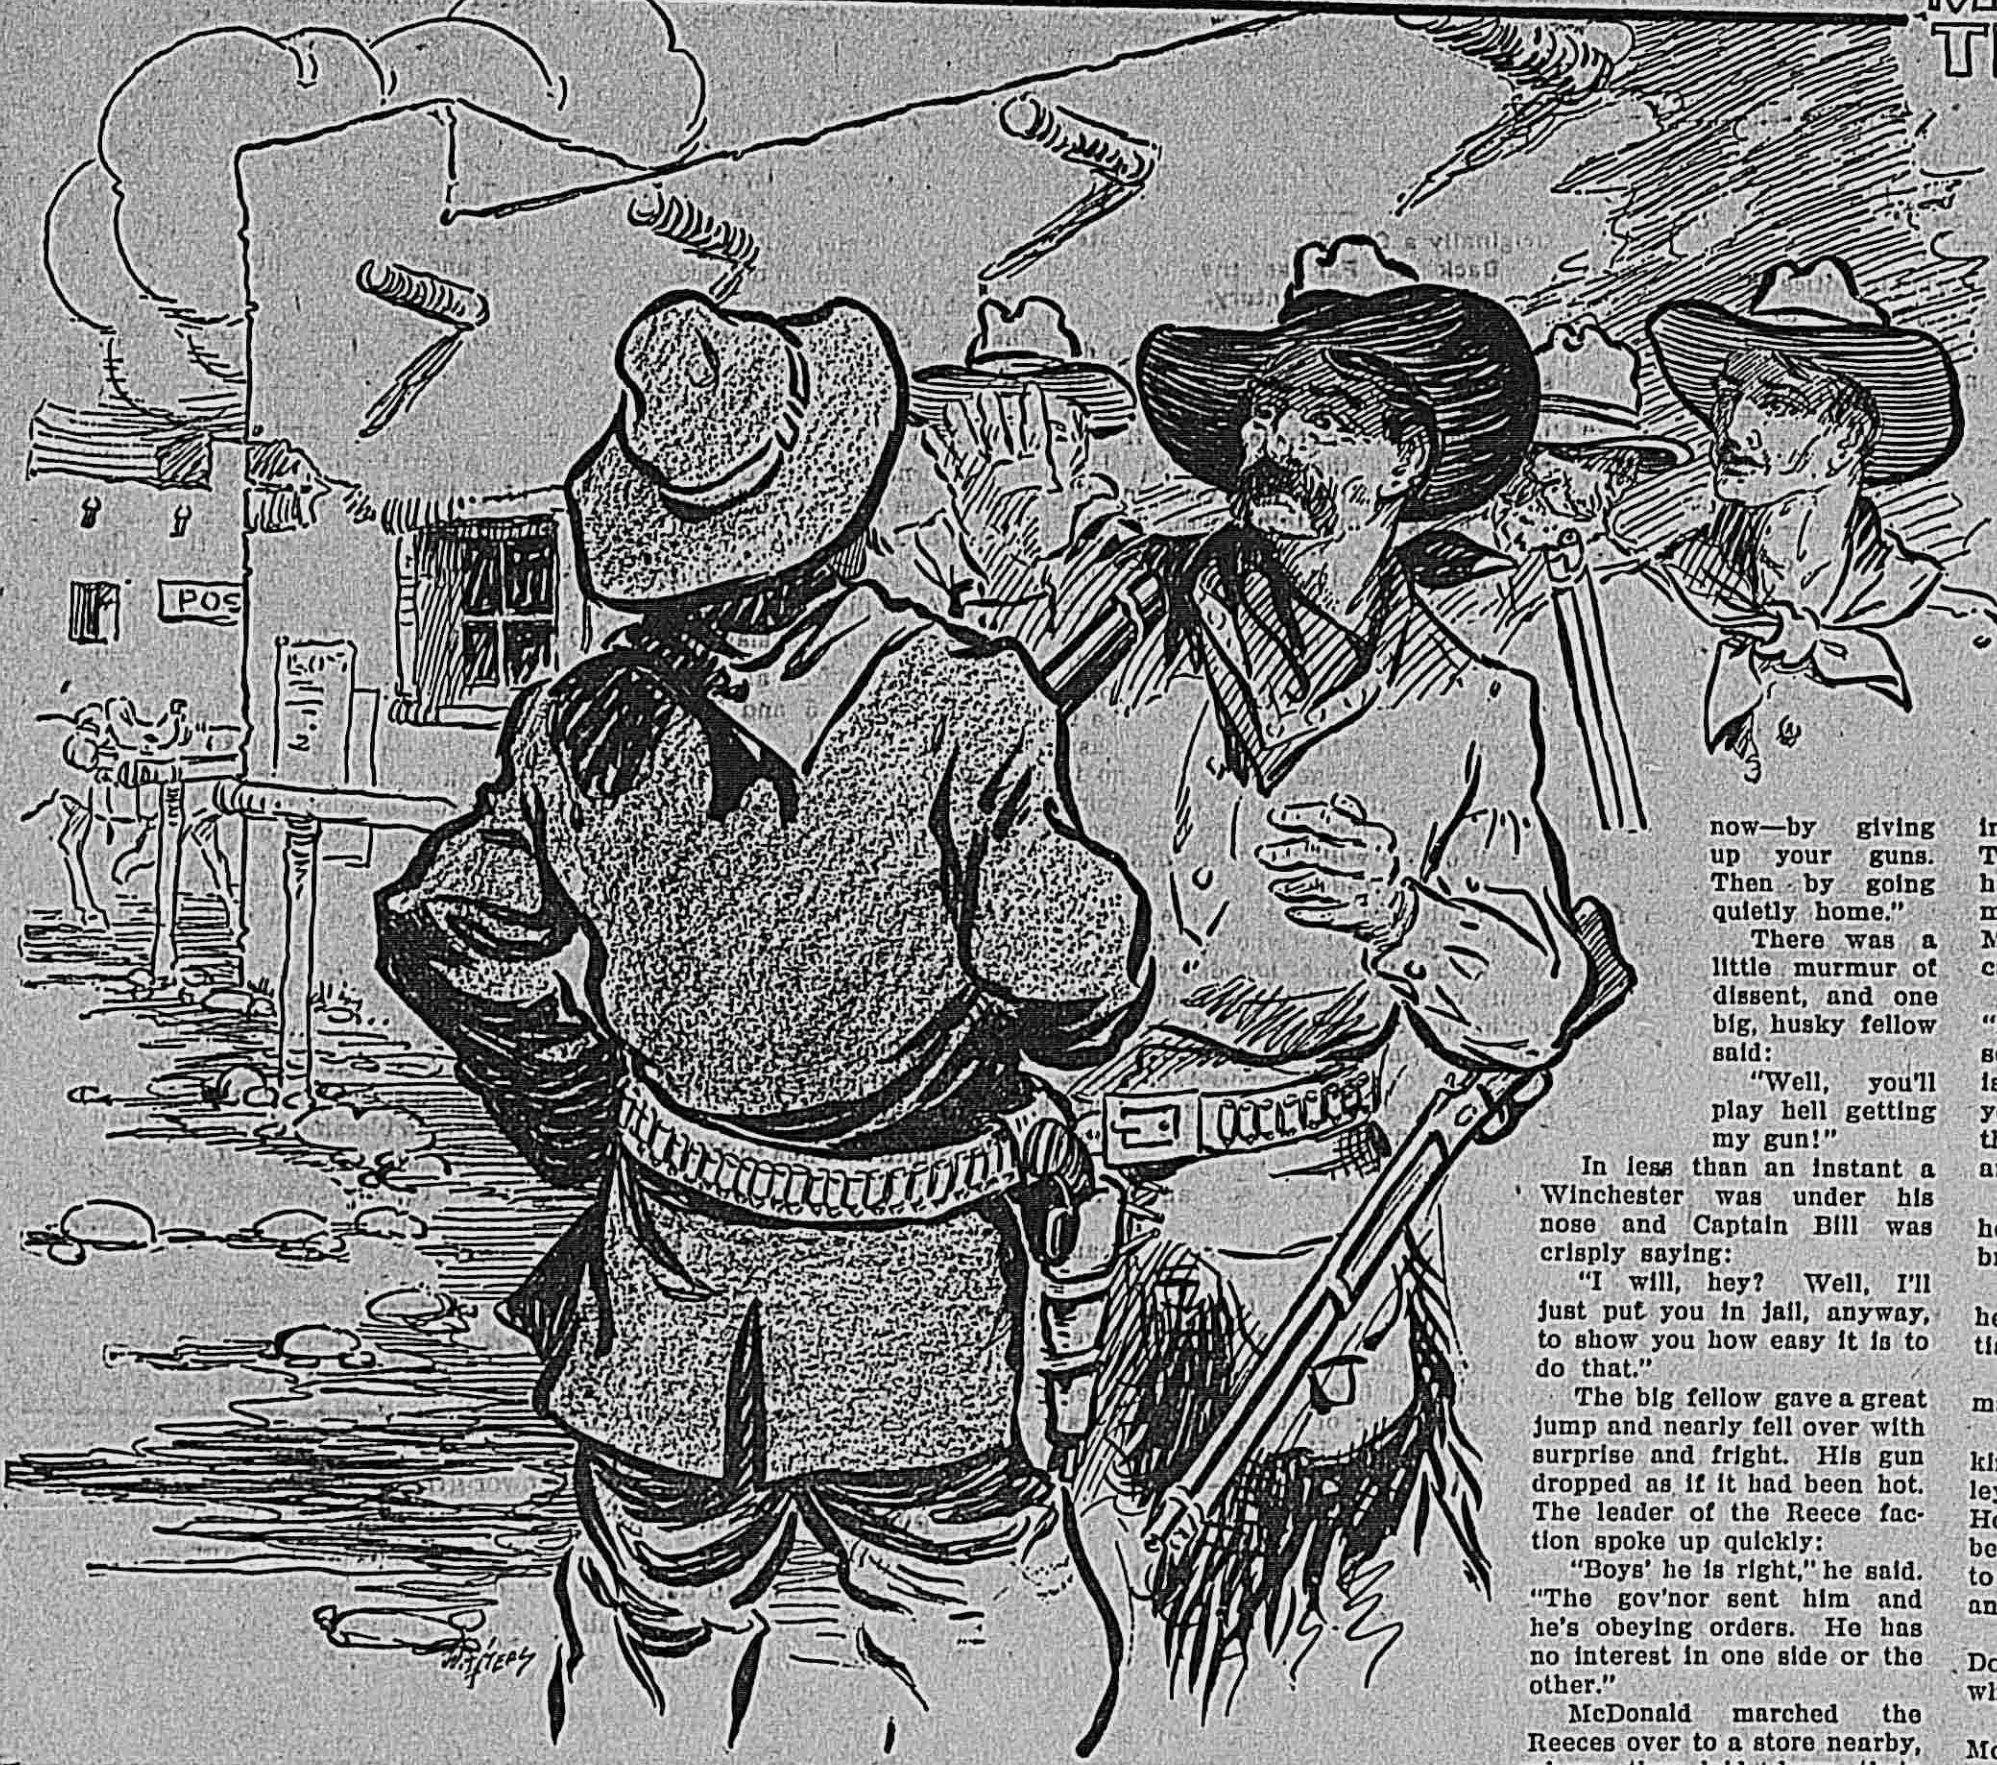

Some interesting sidelights on the life of the peasantry in Ireland are contained in the reports of the inspectors of national schools, which have lately been issued. The report says: "The use of tea is now carried to such dangerous excess that it ranks before alcohol as an enemy of the public health. To aggravate the situation it is in the very poorest parts of the country that the tea evil is most active and hurtful. It is only the cheap sorts of tea that reach these poor people; and, let the quality be good or bad, the tea is so prepared for use that the liquid, when drunk, has the properties of a slow poison. The tea-pot stewing on the hearth all day long is kept literally on tap; the members of the family, young as well as old, resorting to it at discretion."

now—by giving up your guns. Then by going quietly home."

There was a little murmur of dissent, and one big, husky fellow said:

"Well, you'll play hell getting my gun!"

In less than an instant a Winchester was under his nose and Captain Bill was crisply saying:

"I will, hey? Well, I'll just put you in jail, anyway, to show you how easy it is to do that."

The big fellow gave a great jump and nearly fell over with surprise and fright. His gun dropped as if it had been hot. The leader of the Reece faction spoke up quickly:

"Boys, he's right," he said. "The governor sent him and he's obeying orders. He has no interest in one side or the other."

McDonald marched the Reeves over to a store nearby, where they laid down their guns and the clerk was ordered to take charge of them. The big man under arrest promised all manner of things if Captain Bill would let him go. He was set free, with a warning. Peace now seemed to be restored and in the general gratitude of the community refreshments and invitations were tendered to Captain Bill from both sides. He decided, however, to remain on duty during the rest of the day and night. His two men arrived next morning, but everything was still quiet and there appeared no sign of a renewal of hostilities. The Reece-Townsend trouble, for the time, at least, was over.

Captain McDonald was still at Columbus when he received a telegram ordering him to report at once to Assistant Attorney General Morris and the local officials at Athens, Henderson county, Texas, for the purpose of investigating the lynching of three respectable citizens—a father and two sons, named Humphreys—in a timbered tract between Trinity river and Cedar Creek, known as the Trans-cedar bottoms.

The Humphreys were honest, sturdy men—fearless and open in their dealings. They were a menace to a gang who made moonshine whiskey, stole whatever they could lay hands on and would swear a man's life away for a lean hog. It was necessary for the welfare of the neighborhood that the Humphreys be disposed of, and they were taken by a mob one night and hanged—three of them to one tree—they having been placed upon horses and the horses driven from under them. Then, when the ropes had proven too long and the feet of one of the three Humphreys had touched the ground, the mob had bent back the legs of the victims at the knee and tied the feet upward to the hands, so that the Humphreys might swing clear.

Bill McDonald knew something of the Trans-cedar country and the character of its settlement, for he had passed his youth and his early manhood at Henderson and at Mineola, both within 75 miles of that very district. He set out by first train and arriving at Athens he learned the details of the ghastly crime which already, through the telegraphed reports, had stirred the entire state. He learned that the lynching had taken place about 25 miles from Athens, near a little postoffice named Alely, and he hurried to that place without delay, taking with him one Guy Green, an Athens lawyer, familiar with the neighborhood. With Green, the Rangers went straight to the scene of the murder and made such examination of the tracks and various clues as remained. Two days had passed since the crime and many of the signs had been obliterated. Still there was enough for a man with the faculties of Captain Bill. He identified no less than four trails—one, as he decided, made by five horses, another by three, a third by two, and a fourth the track of a single horse. The trails wound in and out, crossed and recrossed, and were evidently made with the idea of balking pursuit. Captain McDonald did not consider them especially difficult, and having satisfied himself that they could be followed, he went on to Alely, for it was near nightfall.

At Alely he joined Assistant Attorney General Ned Morris, District Attorney Jerry Cook and others who had come out from Athens to aid the investigation.

He discussed the case with the officials and learned that one Joe Wilkerson was suspected as having been connected with the murder, it being well known that Wilkerson had pursued the Humphreys and beamed them, finally accusing them of stealing hogs, and swearing to some meat which the Humphreys had earned by digging wells. In the evidence it had developed that the Wilkerson hogs, though mortgaged by him, had in reality been sold, and that he had thus attempted to evade the consequences of this illegal act by saddling the Humphreys with a still heavier crime. The Humphreys had been cleared, but Wilkerson had never ceased to vilify them. Later one of the Humphrey boys, George, had been set upon by some of the Wilkerson crowd and in defending himself had killed, with a knife, one of his assailants. The courts—there were honest courts in Athens—had cleared him, but in the Trans-cedar tribunal he had been doomed. These facts constituted about all the foundation of known motive upon which McDonald would have to build his evidence. It was while he was discussing these things with the attorney on the night of his arrival that a man rode up to the gate just outside and called his name.

Captain Bill rose, but the others protested, declaring that it might be a plot to shoot him in the dark. However, he went, six-shooter in hand, and sticking it in the face of the caller, demanded his business. The man protested that he meant no harm, but had come from one Buck Holley, who lived two miles down the road, and said he knew Captain McDonald and wanted to see him. The Ranger captain reflected a minute.

"I don't know any Buck Holley," he said. "I knew a scoundrel by the name of Bill Holley some years ago up in the Panhandle and if that is who it is I don't want to see him. I judge you fellows have got a gang down the road there to shoot me from ambush. Who are you, anyway?"

The man said his name was Monasco; that he was staying at Holley's and that he had a brother named Bill Monasco, in Amarillo.

"I know Bill Monasco," McDonald said, "and he has a brother that was sent to the penitentiary. Is that you?"

The visitor acknowledged that he was the man—that he had been recently released.

"Well," said McDonald, "that's about the kind of a crowd I would expect to find Bill Holley running with, and you can tell this 'Buck Holley,' as you call him, that I suspect him of being connected with this mob and that I used to make him stand hitched in the Panhandle, and that I'm going to do the same here."

Monsaco said "Good night," and Captain McDonald never saw him again. Somewhat later, when he met Bill Holley, he said:

"Look here, Bill, I'm afraid your partner, Monasco, didn't tell you the message I sent the night I came. I said I didn't know Buck Holley, but that I knew a sorry, bulldozing scoundrel by the name of Bill Holley, and that I supposed he was down the road there to take a shot at me from ambush. You weren't in this lynching mob, I reckon, but they're your friends, and you'd help 'em if you could. Now, Bill, you've been courting a funeral a good while, and if you try any of your nonsense here, you'll win out."

The Ranger captain was out early the morning after his arrival in Alely, and on the trail. The tracks of the five horses were followed to the houses of Joe Wilkerson and his son Brooks and to the homes of John and Arthur Greenhaw. In Joe Wilkerson's lot he found a part of a well-rope, the remainder of which had been cut away. It matched precisely with the rope used to hang the Humphreys—the freshly cut ends being the same on both. The Wilkersons and one of the Greenhaws were taken into custody forthwith and other arrests followed as the criminals were tracked home.

The testimony brought out the facts that the Humphreys had known of an illicit still run by two men—one Polk Weeks and a man named Johns. Also that they had known of John Greenhaw stealing cattle and hogs, and that John Greenhaw had once drawn a gun on the elder Humphrey, who had promptly taken it away from him, instead of killing him with it and rendering the community a service. These things, added to the other provocations already named, had made the Humphreys sufficiently unpopular in a neighborhood like the Trans-cedar bottoms to warrant their being hung to a limb, trussed up to swing clear of the ground.

Guilty knowledge of the crime actually killed a man named Eli Sparks, whose conscience tortured him day and night to the point of giving testimony, yet whose fears upon the witness stand caused him to withhold the truth. He was a large, red-faced man, evidently greatly excited when questioned and concealing more than he told. Soon after his first examination he met Captain McDonald and offered to testify again, saying that he had been too frightened to tell the truth the first time, but thought he could do better now. The Ranger captain scrutinized him keenly and made the prophecy that Eli Sparks would not live 30 days, unless he got rid of the load on his conscience. He died in just half that time; not, however, until he had fully confessed.

The efforts of the men believed to be concerned as principals in the crime, to establish their innocence were sometimes wary, sometimes crudely absurd and always fruitless. The mesh of fact that was weaving and linking itself about them became daily more tightly woven, more impossible to tear away. Knowing themselves closely watched, they dared not attempt flight. To do so would be to confess guilt and capture would be well-nigh certain. Like Ahab, having compassed the death of a neighbor, they "lay in sackcloth and went softly." Finally it came to pass that three of these "children of Babel," turned state's evidence—that is, they confessed fully, sacrificing their comrades, under the law, to save themselves. Eleven men, including these three, were brought to trial.

In the final trial John and Arthur Greenhaw and Polk Weeks, who were not only murderers but cowardly traitors, were given their freedom in exchange for their evidence that sent their eight associates to the penitentiary for life.

Polk Weeks, in giving his evidence, appeared much disturbed, but confessed how he had climbed the tree and tied the ropes, and tied them too long, making it necessary for the legs of the Humphreys to be bent upward, to clear the ground. John Greenhaw corroborated this, but grinned as he told it, remembering how amusing it had been. He did not live to enjoy his freedom, for he was shot dead soon after his liberation, by Willie Humphrey, son of one of the younger Humphreys, and no punishment followed the righteous act.

Diplomacy.

Here is a story about a diplomatic negro waiter; also about two well-known Kansas men, who can go by the names of Smith and Jones, just to tell the yarn.

Smith and Jones look much alike and are frequently taken for each other. One day Smith was in a certain big hotel not a thousand miles from Kansas City and went into the dining room for dinner. The negro waiter busily brushed off the crumbs and said: "Why, how is you, Mr. Jones, how is you? I's glad to see you. I hasn't seen you since I waited on your table when you all used to have a little game upstairs."

"I'm afraid you are mistaken," said Smith, very quickly. "My name isn't Jones. You have the wrong man."

"Nuff said; nuff said," smiled the negro, with much bowing and scraping. "Ah knows all right when to keep mah mouth shut; Ah knows all right, Mr. Jones."—Kansas City Journal.

She left the place. She would lay another egg tomorrow.—Princeton Tiger.

When Teacher Has Coffee Habit.

"Best is best, and best will ever live." When a person feels this way about Postum they are glad to give testimony for the benefit of others.

A school teacher down in Miss. says: "I had been a coffee drinker since my childhood, and the last few years it had injured me seriously."

"One cup of coffee taken at breakfast would cause me to become so nervous that I could scarcely go through with the day's duties, and this nervousness was often accompanied by deep depression of spirits and heart palpitation."

"I am a teacher by profession, and when under the influence of coffee had to struggle against crossness when in the school room."

"When talking this over with my physician, he suggested that I try Postum, so I purchased a package and made it carefully according to directions; found it excellent of flavor, and nourishing."

"In a short time I noticed very gratifying effects. My nervousness disappeared, I was not irritated by my pupils, life seemed full of sunshine, my heart troubled me no longer."

"I attribute my change in health spirits to Postum alone."

Read the little book, "The Wellville," in pkgs. "There's Ever read the above? one appears from time are genuine, true, and interest."

CAPTAIN BILL stayed for a considerable time in the Mexican capital, for his traveling companion, the bank director, fell very ill, and the Ranger captain turned nurse to pull him through. He became a well-known figure in the city, being often pointed out as the man who had taken a squad of police in charge; who was going to bring the Rangers down to whip the Guatemalans, and whose skill with the six-shooter was nothing short of miraculous. This last belief was in some manner sustained one day when he visited a shooting gallery in company with an American dentist, who had taken pleasure in showing him the sights of the quaint old town.

"Captain, suppose you shoot out those targets as rapidly as you can, and see how many you'll miss," he said, when they were inside.

Without hesitation McDonald drew his revolver and opened a fusillade, hitting a target at each shot. Two Mexicans who were practicing in the gallery made a wild break for the open air and safety. Soldiers and police came running in excitement and confusion to discover the cause. It was all over by this time and the officers, seeing only Captain Bill and the dentist, stood gaping, waiting an explanation.

"It is nothing," said the dentist in Spanish; "my friend the captain was only practicing a little to keep his hand in."

As the century drew near its end a wave of disorder and crime that amounted to an inundation swept over the eastern and southern portion of Texas. Murders, lynchings, mobs and rumors of mobs were reported daily.

The Reece-Townsend feud in Colorado county gave the state no end of trouble. The Reece and Townsend families killed one another in the regulation way, when good opportunities offered. They had a fashion of gathering in the streets of Columbus, the county seat, for their demonstrations and sometimes on a field day like this they killed members of other families, by mistake. But errors of this sort were not allowed to interfere with the central idea of the feud; they apologized, and went on killing one another, just the same.

It was when a boy who belonged to neither faction was shot and killed at one of these reunions that Capt. Bill McDonald and his Rangers were ordered to Columbus to put down what seemed about to become a general war.

Captain Bill failed to receive the order in time to get his men the same day, but did not wait. He wired two to follow him on the first train, and set out for Columbus alone. Arriving on the streets of Columbus, he saw detachments of armed men gathered here and there—the streets being otherwise deserted. He set out at once for the home of District Judge Kennon, to whom he had been ordered to report. After the exchange of greetings, McDonald said:

"We haven't much time, judge, from appearances. I saw a lot of armed men as I came along and it looks like we're going to have war."

"You are right," Judge Kennon said; "we are expecting it any minute. Where are your men and how many have you?"

"None, judge. I came alone, but I expect two in the morning."

"In the morning! Why, man, by that time the fight will be over! And what can you do with two men here? Nothing less than 25 or 30 will help this case."

"Judge," said Captain Bill, in his deliberate way, "I believe I can stop this thing if you will come down to the courthouse with me. Anyhow, it's my duty to try; and we'd better be getting over there now, judge, for this ain't going to wait long. If we can't stop it, we can see a mighty good fight, anyhow."

They set out together. The courthouse in Columbus stands in the middle of a big square, with a street on each of its four sides. On one corner of the square was gathered the Reece faction and near another corner the Townsend crowd had assembled. Both were fully armed. They were making no active demonstrations as yet, but were evidently organizing for business. It was a still, sunny day, and both crowds were in easy calling distance of the courthouse.

"Now, judge," said Captain Bill, when they had arrived at the courthouse, "who is your sheriff and where is he?"

"His name is Burford, J. C. Burford, and he's over there with the Townsend crowd. He belongs to that faction."

Captain Bill stepped to the window and called, in the strong, official manner of a witness summons: "J. C. Burford," repeated three times.

There was a movement in the Townsend crowd and a man crossed over and ascended the courthouse stair. McDonald introduced himself, as the sheriff entered, and added:

"Now, Burford, why don't you stop this row? Looks as if we're going to have a killing match here, right away."

"Captain, I can't. I'm powerless to do anything with these men. If I undertake to disarm them it will start a fight that nobody can stop."

"Well, Burford, if you'll do as I tell you, I'll stop it in 80 minutes or I'll resign my job as Ranger."

"All right, captain, I'll do whatever you say," assented Burford.

"Then call your crowd over here. I want to talk to them."

Sheriff Burford stepped to the window and signed to the Townsend faction. They trooped over and ascended the courthouse stair, carrying their guns.

"Mr. Burford," said McDonald, "which are your regular deputies here?"

The sheriff indicated his three deputy officers. Captain Bill motioned them to stand apart from the others.

"Now, sheriff," he said, "disarm the rest of these men."

The officer looked a little bewildered.

"I don't know about—" he began.

"Didn't you agree to do what I ordered?"

Then, to Kennon—"Didn't he, judge?"

The judge nodded. The sheriff still hesitated.

"Never mind," said McDonald, "I'll do it myself. Here, boys," he went on in his mild, friendly drawl, "come in here and stack your guns in this wardrobe. It's a good safe place for them. They won't be likely to go off and hurt anybody in there."

What was it about the manner of the man that made men obey? Those aroused, blood-thirsty Texans, full of an old, deep hatred and the spirit of revenge, marched in and put away their guns at his direction, with scarcely a word of dissent.

He went out of the courthouse and crossed the street to where the Reece crowd was gathered. He carried his Winchester and the faction watched him curiously as he approached.

"I guess you boys are going to war, ain't you?" he said, cheerfully, as he came nearer.

Nobody replied and Captain Bill came up close.

"Boys," he said, "your guns are all right up till now, but the governor has sent me down here to stop this trouble and I want you all to help me."

"How can we help you?" asked one of the Reece faction.

"Like them boys did over yonder, just

Now the astronomers tell that the comet has split. Wonder which part is insurgent.

The ghost of Yerkes is still hovering over the street railroad situation in Chicago.

Chicago is growing jealous of Gary, Ind. If we remember rightly, Chicago was once jealous of St. Louis.

"Boil the water" is the slogan over in Waukegan. If it is not cutting in we would suggest that frying it would prove appetizing for a change.

Taft refuses to pardon the former president of the Knickerbocker Ice Co. No wonder some people believe our good executive has got cold feet.

One swallow doesn't make a summer, neither does one candidate for county superintendent of schools make a fight. Get into the game, the other man who is thinking about it.

Wait until you hear something more from Shurtleff. His solar plexus blow for the poor old waterways is soon due. The first was on the tip of the chin but may be it needs another.

Senator Lorimer said a few things in his speech in the senate that must make all of us who wish to be fair minded, wait at least, until all the returns are in before we bring final judgment.

How are the local optionists who have got $10,000 for a campaign fund in Waukegan going to spend it? We hope this isn't throwing out any false hopes to the Gazette's "dear ones at home."

If the sugar trust had depended on Trevor's beets for its sweetness we would never have had this contemptible false weight business as a criminal scandal. That's what it gets for not encouraging home industry.

Gov. Deneen's political machine makes very little noise running in these supposed to be strenuous times. If it is as big and powerful as alleged to be it certainly must be well greased. Perhaps there is some mistake as to its bigness and power.

There would be little doing in Springfield these days if it wasn't for Burke. To get down to brass tacks Burke doesn't seem to be such a stem winder after all. He has got to dig up more than he has ever to be a fourth rate "me too" to Wayman.

That was a magnanimous act, that of the old G. A. R. heroes, in their state meeting at Freeport the other day when they decided it was none of their affairs if Virginia wanted Lee's statue in the congressional hall of fame. A brave man is the one who does things like this.

Friends of Mr. Cummings, the Highwood postmaster, who seems to be a little short in his accounts, say that the whole trouble is due to carelessness. Uncle Sam is a good fellow but most people have found that the word careless doesn't go much when they are doing business with him.

Complaints are coming stronger from Chicago that its millionaires who live in Lake county are fixing things to escape the whole local tax there on all their personal holdings. This ought to be meat for us and we are in favor of having tax officials in this county who have got the fortitude and integrity to see that there is no tax dodging. Incidentally, it might ease up on us in the north-west end. What good are their picturesque landscapes and forest preserves to us up here? They are all down near the Cook county line, anyway.

Fraternal Insurance in Politics

The revelations at Rock Island in the investigation of the fraternal insurance officials that is going on there makes rather startling reading. The state officers of some dozen or fifteen orders are on the grill for misapplication of funds. The lead has now come up to J. B. R. Van Cleave, former commissioner of insurance for Illinois.

The questionable procedure on the part of the men under accusation seems to be this: that while holding the reserve funds required by the state, they substituted their individual notes and exchanged them with each other, then deposited them in the funds as a cash asset and withdrew the corresponding amount in cash for the purposes of private speculation.

The way it gets into politics is that it now comes out that this was done with the cognisance and the acquiescence of the said J. B. R. Van Cleave.

This all certainly seems to be a very undesirable condition of affairs if true. It is bad enough to juggle with the resources of an ordinary corporation where innocent stockholders are the victims but when it comes to playing fast and loose, for the purpose of private speculation, with these sacred benefits that fathers and husbands are depending upon for their widows and children, it becomes a crime.

It looks as if the present state administration was wise when on its first appearance it dropped J. B. R. Van Cleave like a hot coal.

We are glad to notice that the Woodmen have no cause to worry. Their officials like Caesar's wife are above suspicion.

The County Candidates

In a late issue we insisted on the Republican voter using every discretion when selecting his candidate for the state legislature. But if we are good citizens we must not rest with that proposition.

The candidates for the county offices are varied and many. Possibly of more immediate importance to us who live in Lake is the question, who, after the next election, is to take charge and manage the business affairs of the locality which concerns us the most.

The man at the primaries often forgets, when the big offices, state or national are at stake, that after all it may be the men who are to run the things in his own neighborhood will be the ones to interest him most when the election is over and be up against every day conditions again.

Of course, theoretically, our government at Washington is of the most import to us all, next the state as the controller of our destinies but when you come right down to it, it is the smaller things in our lives that really make up the sum and substance of our living.

So it is in politics, the great questions at Washington, the less great at Springfield effect us, but which ever way they are decided it will not cause near the worry or the hundreds of petty difficulties were it that we have the wrong men for supervisors, for county treasurer, for superintendent of schools and for the many other officials who almost come into our every day concerns.

No matter whether the insurgents win or the stand patters hold the ace Lake county citizens will keep on doing business in the same old way without ever turning a hair, but if a county treasurer steals two or three hundred thousand from us or the school superintendent establishes a system that is going to start our on-coming generation out with a handicap then we will stop more than a minute to see what we are up against.

Let it be repeated, when you are guessing on perhaps a congressman, that it may be a much more serious thing to you directly whether you have picked the right man way down at the end of the ticket.

MEANING OF WILLOW PATTERN

Originally a Chinese Design and Dates Back as Far as the Thirteenth Century.

The willow pattern is a Chinese design and very ancient, dating probably as far back as the thirteenth century; less than two centuries later it was reproduced in the potteries of Holland. This pattern is a very complicated design containing many figures in small space. In the foreground is a palatial building, around which cluster impossible trees laden with flowers and fruit.

Close by is a lake, an inlet from which hang the drooping limbs of a willow tree, and far out in the lake is a houseboat. Three figures are passing over the bridge, while high up in the air a pair of billing and cooling doves are suspended. The imaginary legend of the willow pattern design is said to be as follows:

A nobleman living in the palace had a fair daughter who had fallen in love with a youth of low degree. One night, with the help of a ladder, the youth abducted the willing maiden and the somewhat shapeless figures on the bridge are supposed to represent the fleeing damsel carrying her bundle of finery, the darling lover, bearing the ladder, and the irate father, having in his hand an instrument of castigation.

The boat in the distance is meant to represent the agent in the escape of the devoted lovers from the wrath of the angry parent, while the doves overhead symbolize the fact that they married and lived happily ever after, in the manner of the usual mythical tale.—From the Housekeeper.

Sleep and the Brain.

When the brain is at work marshaling ideas, producing mental pictures, and calling into action stored-up memories and impressions, the cells of its mysteriously potent gray matter undergo a change of form. Cavities are formed in them, which, as the brain becomes wearied by long-continued action, fill with a watery fluid. Part of the substance of the cells appears to have been consumed in the process of thinking, but in the hours of sleep the exhausted cells regain their original form, the supply of recuperative material coming from the blood and on awakening, the mind finds its instrument restored and prepared again for action.

LORIMER MAKES SPECIFIC DENIAL

Illinois Statesman Lashes Foes Who Have Made Open Charges of Bribery—Eulogy of Democratic State
Leader—Holstlaw Makes Damaging Admissions in Connection With Case—Washington Investigation May Be Put Off for Months.

Washington.—Senator William Lorimer of Illinois on Saturday delivered his speech in reply to the bribery charges reflecting on his election to the highest legislative body of the nation. Before his expectant colleagues he dramatically demanded an investigation of the charges that originated with the statement of Charles A. White in the Chicago Tribune April 30. In passionate language he denounced the Tribune and Medill McCormick, its publisher, and summed up the substance of the charges as "malicious slander."

Says Deneen Suggested Him.
Senator Lorimer ascribed to Governor Deneen the suggestion that Lorimer become a candidate for senator. This was at a conference that followed unavailing efforts to find a candidate on whom the factions could unite, and after Lorimer refused to consider Roy O. West for the place. When Governor Deneen made the suggestion, Lorimer says, he (Lorimer) replied he was not a candidate, but later Speaker Shurtliff and others urged it upon him, "on account of the apparent friendship of Governor Deneen," and Lorimer discussed the situation with some of the governor's friends, including John R. Thompson and Chauncey Dewey.

"After my talks with them and many members of the legislature," said Lorimer, "I referred them all to the governor and told them under no circumstances would I be a candidate unless he acquiesced in their support of me. They called on him; what he said to them I do not know, but they reported he was for me and that they would support me if my name was presented."

Eulogy of Lee O'Neill Browne.
Other interesting features of the speech included the following:

Eulogy of Lee O'Neill Browne, indicted for bribery, as "a strong, high-minded, God-fearing, honorable man," who "told me that he believed the Bible from cover to cover."

A statement in a discussion of the latter-day breaking of party fealty that "the direct primary has worked out the same conditions in Illinois that obtain in Oregon. Who would have been so bold 15 years ago as to have declared that any kind of conditions could arise in any state that would cause a Republican legislature to elect a Democrat to the United States senate, as occurred in the election of the distinguished junior senator from Oregon?"

First Clash With Medill.
An assertion that Lorimer's first controversy with the Chicago Tribune dated back to the days of Joseph Medill, when Lorimer, then a street-car conductor, refused, so he says, to do the bidding of Medill in an aldermanic contest.

There follows a description of how police guarded the ballot at the time of the Durborrow contest.

Comment on Deneen and West.
"When they were poor and in need of help they were anxious and pleased to work with the organization even against the constant assault of the newspaper trust; but after they had become prosperous and affluent they felt they could stand the lash no longer, and ran to the newspaper cover and have been subservient since that time."

DENEEN ANSWERS LORIMER.

Denies Conspiracy With Chicago Paper; Sets Out His Facts.

Springfield.—Governor Deneen issued the following statement in reference to the speech in the United States senate in which he was attacked by Senator Lorimer:

"While the reports of Senator Lorimer's speech obtained by me have been meager, I understand that he charges that I have entered into a conspiracy with the Chicago Tribune, to have published the confession of Representative White.

"This charge is without any foundation of fact. The facts are as follows: About midnight of the day before the story was published a representative of the Chicago Tribune met me at the Union League club and informed me that he had been waiting two hours to see me; that the editor of the Tribune was exceedingly anxious to interview me about a matter of very great importance and that they would have to go to press within a few minutes. Accordingly I went to the Tribune office, which was near by.

"A statement was there made to me of Mr. White's confession and an interview was requested. A very brief interview was given by me in which I stated in substance that a full examination should be made of the assertions contained in the charges.

"Mr. White's confession was in type and was on the press when I arrived at the Tribune office.

"This was the first intimation I received that Mr. White had confessed or was in any way implicated in charges of bribery.

"Regarding the deadlock over the senatorship: After the primaries I stood for the election of Senator Hopkins and did not know that Mr. Lorimer, Mr. Shurtliff and their friends were against him until Mr. Lorimer and Speaker Shurtliff had effected an organization of the house of representatives with the aid of Democratic members.

"After the deadlock had existed some time Mr. Lorimer called upon me repeatedly. I had assumed from conversations we had at these times that it was entirely with a view of effecting a reconciliation between Republican factions; and notwithstanding that I felt I had suffered unjustly by reason of attacks both in the preceding legislature, the preceding primaries, the preceding election, the preceding organization of the house and in the effort put forth to unseat me and seat my opponent as governor, still I felt that I should lay aside all personal feelings and interest in the hope of bringing about harmony in the party.

"Mr. Lorimer informed me that his friends would under no circumstances vote for Senator Hopkins and as it was impossible to elect a senator by Republican votes without the votes of his friends, I stated that they should go to a Republican caucus

Broderick gave him $700 without explanation except the statement that 'it was coming to him.' Holstlaw said he supposed this money was from the so-called legislative 'jack pot.'

He also said that he was promised $1,500 in connection with the letting of the contract to supply furniture for the capitol. The confession was made on the advice of his attorneys, George B. Gillespie and Arthur M. Fitzgerald.

Makes Voluminous Confession.
Senator Holstlaw broke down completely and made a voluminous confession.

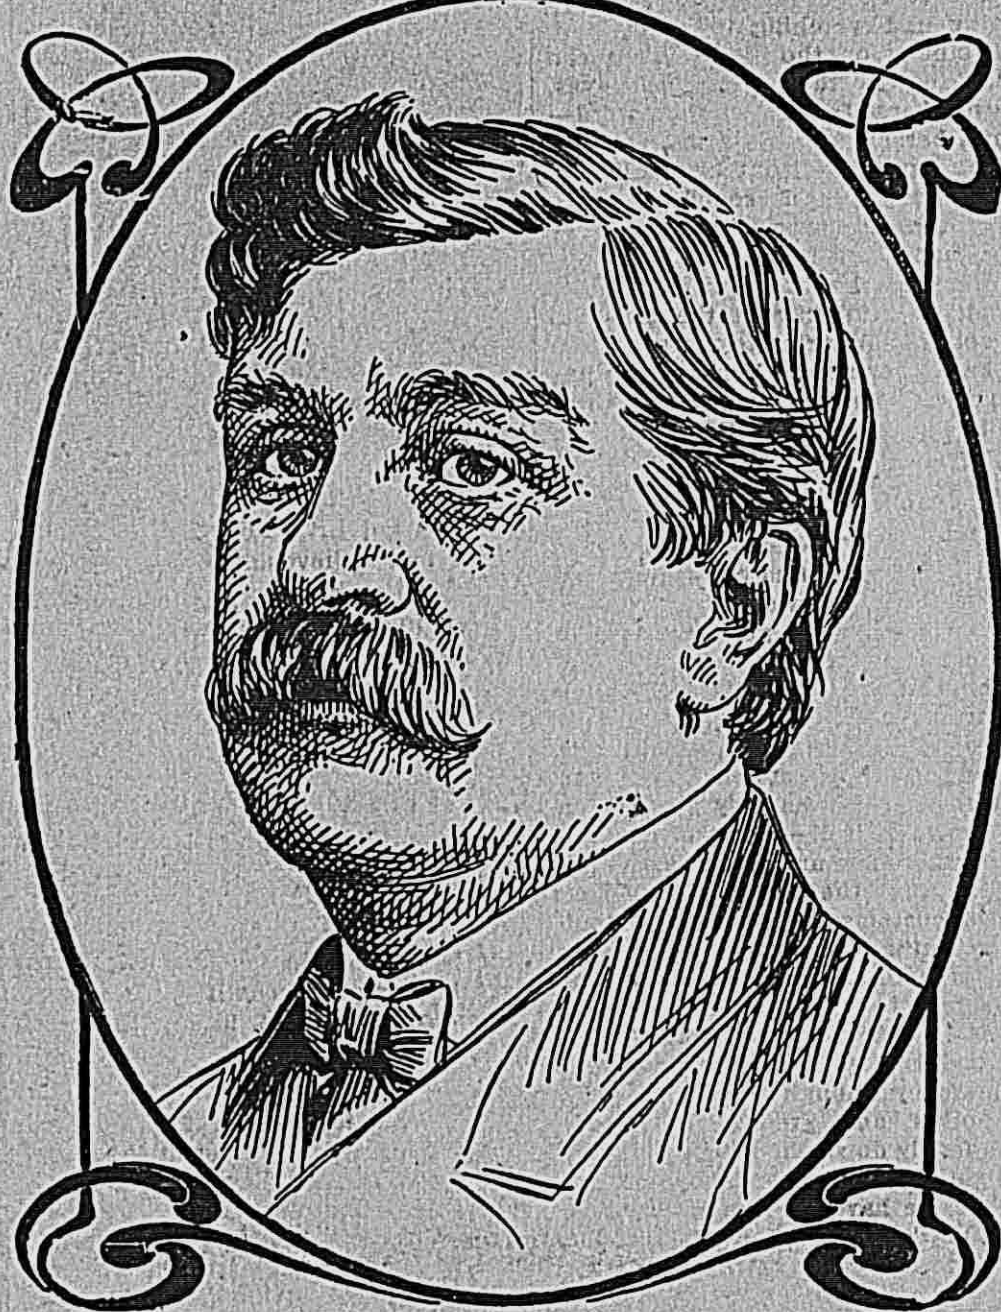

Later Otto Freier, an agent for the Ford-Johnson Furniture company at the time the legislative furniture deal was put through, is declared to have made a second confession to State's Attorney Burke, implicating Senator Holstlaw and other members of the legislative committee.

Senator Holstlaw in his confession said the Lorimer bribe money was handed to him by State Senator John Broderick of Chicago, one of the leading Democrats of the upper legislative body and prominent in Chicago politics. Holstlaw was indicted on a charge of perjury in connection with the furniture transaction.

Holstlaw Wanted Immunity.

State's Attorney Burke later in the day granted Senator Holstlaw immunity from prosecution and the senator left for his home. His story will involve, it is stated, several prominent members of the legislature.

Holstlaw's confession coming immediately after the speech of Senator to select a candidate who could secure the majority of the caucus and thereafter the full vote of the party in his election to the senatorship.

"This was the view taken by Republicans throughout the state and a number of names had been mentioned in this connection by friends of various candidates; among them being Col. Frank Lowden, Congressman McKinley, A. C. Bartlett, Hon. W. A. Rodenberg and a number of others, among them being Roy O. West.

"Mr. Lorimer was opposed to the plan of nominating by caucus. Later I was informed by him and his friends that I could be elected senator. I refused absolutely to consider it. Nevertheless, shortly before his election, an effort was made by Mr. Lorimer and his friends in the general assembly to elect me. I called together in my office Republicans who had supported me in the senate and who had gone into a Republican caucus in the house and stated to them that this movement was without my approval and that I would not accept the office if elected.

"Shortly before Senator Lorimer was elected and after the deadlock had dragged on for months, it became apparent that he was a candidate. A number of my friends, whom he mentions in his speech, called upon me and I advised them strongly against voting for him, even though he could get a minority of the Republicans to aid the Democrats in electing him. All of these facts were published as the contest went on and were at that time familiar to the public.

"While I am surprised at the character of the statements made by Senator Lorimer, I am at a loss to know what possible relation they bear to the charge now under investigation—that his election to the United States senate was procured by means of bribery."

ADMITS TAKING BRIBE.

State Senator Holstlaw Acknowledges
Misconduct as Legislator.

Springfield.—State Senator D. W. Holstlaw confessed to State's Attorney Burke and later to the Sangamon county grand jury that he voted for William Lorimer for United States senator and was paid therefor $2,500. He stated in the confession that the money was handed him by State Senator John Broderick of Chicago.

Senator Holstlaw also stated that

BABY'S SCALP CRUSTED

"Our little daughter, when three months old, began to break out on the head and we had the best doctors to treat her, but they did not do her any good. They said she had eczema. Her scalp was a solid scale all over. The burning and itching was so severe that she could not rest, day or night. We had about given up all hopes when we read of the Cuticura Remedies. We at once got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and followed directions carefully. After the first dose of the Cuticura Resolvent, we used the Cuticura Soap freely and applied the Cuticura Ointment. Then she began to improve rapidly and in two weeks the scale came off her head and new hair began to grow. In a very short time she was well. She is now sixteen years of age and a picture of health. We used the Cuticura Remedies about five weeks, regularly, and then we could not tell she had been affected by the disease. We used no other treatments after we found out what the Cuticura Remedies would do for her. J. Fish and Ella M. Fish, Mt. Vernon, Ky., Oct. 12, 1909."

VARIETIES OF KISS

STYLES INTRODUCED HERE FROM THE OLD WORLD.

Different Methods, From the Rubbing of Whiskers to the Holy One for Mother, Noted by Keen Observer.

"I have been keeping tabs on the different kinds of kissers who come in here," said Gustav Melhauser, the big porter at the piers of the Hamburg-American line, at the foot of First street, Hoboken, recently, according to the New York World, "and have found that there are six general types and many varieties. To begin with, there is the whisker kiss, or the Russian kiss, which is given by one man to another. The kissers enfold each other in a giant embrace and, putting whiskers to whiskers, kiss each other on the cheeks. M. Witte, the Russian who came over to settle up the Japanese row, gave us the best example of this when he was in Hoboken. I notice that even the lowest Russians and the Asiatic people bordering on the Russian states when they meet their brothers and friends here have this same masculine kiss, but sometimes bestow it on the lips.

"The sweetheart kiss is distinct from the husband and wife kiss. I can tell German sweethearts from German wives as far as I can see or hear their kisses. I can see the energy of the kiss generating in Heinrich's face as he stands on the dock waiting and watching to catch sight of Gretchen on the ship. When she comes down the plank and—yes, throws herself, that's the word—throws herself into his arms, you can hear the smack of that kiss half way down the pier, a sound to give strength and courage to every male thing that hears it explode.

"There is the 'sent-for' kiss! The sacred, doubtful kiss of the girl who has come to America to marry a man she has never seen. Perhaps she has been introduced to him by some mutual friend in a letter. Some Swedish man in Minnesota has written home to his old school teacher to find him some girl in 'Sma'land' that will make him a good wife—and here she is. When they finally find each other, and after due inspection exchange salutes, it makes one think, generally, of the touching of two icicles.

"Then there is the wifely kiss; you all know that, with its varieties of jealousy and trust; and the kiss of elopers, who have stolen across and salute each other as they set foot on free American soil—a sort of congratulation that they are at last safe—not knowing that the police of Hoboken and the customs inspectors and immigration authorities have a description of them and are only waiting for this signal to grab them.

"And last, there is the holy kiss of the good boy who has come here, made money enough to send for his old mother and greets her as she comes feebly down the gangplank with the light of wonder and hope in her old eyes, he having come 1,000 miles, or 2,000 miles, across country to guide her to the new home he has made for her."

Hatpins In Action.

She was swinging back and forth as she clung to a strap in the subway and as the train drew into the express station at Grand Central she made her way down the car toward the door. There were a score of other people doing the same thing and the crowd pushed itself into a compact mass. When the cars stopped with a jerk she was thrown violently forward and a sharp scream followed. "Oh, my cheek! my cheek!" she gasped and everyone tried to see what had happened.

When the girl caught her breath she turned accusingly on the woman before her. "Your hatpin did it," she declared. "You should be ashamed to allow it to stick out that way. Just suppose it had gone into my eye. I have often noticed the way the women have long hatpin ends exposed and thought how dangerous it was, but I never knew it would come home to me this way."

The crowd was out on the platform by this time and the offending woman had disappeared, but every girl and woman in the group was trying to feel the ends of her hatpins to see if they were exposed.—New York Sun.

Few Have the Knack. It is one of the hardest and most useful accomplishments in the world to be annoyed without letting the fact annoy others.

The Substituted Egg. Lew Fields, at a dinner at the Cafe de l'Opera in New York, told a number of April fool stories.

"Then there was a clever reporter," he said, "who used to do the Albany legislature. If a session promised to be long, the reporter would refresh himself with a hard-boiled egg. Taking the egg from his pocket, he would open it and drop the shells into the crown of his hat, which he held between his knees. He would finish this hurried repast before anyone knew what he was doing.

"But one year it happened that Easter and April 1 came together and the boys couldn't resist playing a joke on their egg-eating friend. They substituted for his hard-boiled egg a raw one."

"Oh, dear," he said, "what a mess there was, to be sure, when in the midst of an important debate, the poor reporter hastily broke that egg in his hat."

About French Novelists.

According to a writer in La Revue of Paris, the rank and file of novelists in France draw on an average $100 for each book, and many of them are thankful to get half that amount. On the other hand, those at the top of the tree earn large incomes, and some of them undertake more commissions than they can fulfill. Recourse is then had to literary "ghosts," of whom there are plenty in Paris, willing to furnish a passable imitation of any writer's work.

Popular novelists do not always take the trouble to read the books under their names. Some years ago a "ghost" with a grievance against his employer interpolated in the book ordered from him two chapters of "Mme. Bovary," altering nothing but the names of the characters.

The woman who signed the book, in order to clear herself from the charge of plagiarism, had to confess that she had farmed it out.

Sand Grains Travel Far.

The travels of grains of sand have long been a matter of scientific record, says Harper's Weekly. Years ago it was established that particles picked up on the coast of Pas de Calais had their origin in the rocks of Brittany, from 120 to 180 miles distant. Another standard fact is the discovery on the coast of Denmark of chalk dust which undoubtedly came from the cliffs of Normandy.

Persimmons to Be Grown in Mexico. Persimmon slips and persimmon seeds in a large consignment have just been received from Japan by the department of fomento for experimentation in the sandy soils of the warmer sections of Mexico.

The plants were sent directly to the agricultural stations situated in the regions where the soil and climate are deemed adaptable, while the seeds will be distributed to hacendados on request, provided these requests come from sections suited for developing the trees.

The species of persimmon brought to Mexico for experimentation differs somewhat from the persimmon of the United States, being the Japanese variety known as Kaki. Preliminary experiments appear to have demonstrated that the trees will flourish in many parts of Mexico and bear large quantities of fruit.—Mexico Record.
